Longtime Greenwich Resident Joins Inspirica, Inc. – From Homeless to Home in Stamford

STAMFORD, CT – Tom Mahoney of Cos Cob has joined Inspirica, Inc.- From Homeless to Home as Chief Program Officer- Support Services.

Mahoney joins Inspirica as the Chief Program Officer of Support and Retention Services. Tom's responsibilities include managing three non-residential programs - Children's Services, Education & Employment and Retention.

Tom has extensive experience working with vulnerable populations. Prior to Inspirica, he worked for the Town of Greenwich Department of Health for 27 years, in various roles including Director of the Office of Special Clinical Services. As a part of that role he managed the department's free and confidential HIV/STD clinic, collaborated with schools and community organizations to provide prevention education and peer outreach, and was the public information officer.

"Our support services are critical to our mission of permanently breaking the cycle of homelessness and Tom will play an important role in implementing these services," said Jason Shaplen, CEO of Inspirica. "He brings a wealth of experience to the position that is invaluable."

About Inspirica
